Mr. Robert Amory, Jr.
Deputy Director (Intelligence)
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C.

Dear Bob:

Al Neal has asked me to repond to that part of your letter of November 26 relating to Tom Brimelow's interest in the papers being prepared by our team of economists. The papers that were sent to you were rough first drafts, which the fellows are reluctant to have spread very far. They are working on a final draft and we should have them available for publication in six weeks or so. I would prefer to send Mr. Brimelow a copy of that when finished if this is satisfactory to him. If I don't hear from you to the contrary, we will plan to do that. However, if he has some immediate need of the first drafts, let me know and I will try to assemble a set for him.

We have the transcript of the proceedings now in hand and will have an edited version to submit to you before very long. I think from the comments that have been passed on to you by Al, Don David and others, you can see how much your contribution was appreciated and I hope, therefore, very much that we can edit it in such a way that the substance of your message can be included in the Saturday Review.

Let me add again my own note of appreciation for all you have done to make the affair the success it so apparently was.

Sincerely,

Porter McKeever
